11 PATRICK BRADY,

12 Plaintiff,

13 v.

14 SCOTT JONES, et al.,

15 Defendants.
16

No. 2:21-cv-00489 AC

ORDER

17 Plaintiff, a pretrial detainee proceeding pro se, seeks relief pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 18 and has requested leave to proceed in forma pauperis pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915.

19 I. Application to Proceed In Forma Pauperis

20 Plaintiff has submitted a declaration that makes the showing required by 28 U.S.C.
21 § 1915(a). ECF No. 2. Accordingly, the request to proceed in forma pauperis will be granted.

22 Plaintiff is required to pay the statutory filing fee of $350.00 for this action. 28 U.S.C.
23 §§ 1914(a), 1915(b)(1). By this order, plaintiff will be assessed an initial partial filing fee in 24 accordance with the provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(b)(1). By separate order, the court will direct 25 the appropriate agency to collect the initial partial filing fee from plaintiff's trust account and 26 forward it to the Clerk of the Court. Thereafter, plaintiff will be obligated for monthly payments 27 of twenty percent of the preceding month's income credited to plaintiff's prison trust account.
28 These payments will be forwarded by the appropriate agency to the Clerk of the Court each time

1 the amount in plaintiff's account exceeds $10.00, until the filing fee is paid in full. 28 U.S.C.
2 § 1915(b)(2).

3 II. Statutory Screening of Prisoner Complaints

4 The court is required to screen complaints brought by prisoners seeking relief against a 5 governmental entity or officer or employee of a governmental entity. 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(a). The 6 court must dismiss a complaint or portion thereof if the prisoner has raised claims that are 7 "frivolous, malicious, or fail[] to state a claim upon which relief may be granted," or that "seek[] 8 monetary relief from a defendant who is immune from such relief." 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(b).

9 A claim "is [legally] frivolous where it lacks an arguable basis either in law or in fact."
10 Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 325 (1989); Franklin v. Murphy, 745 F.2d 1221, 1227-28 (9th 11 Cir. 1984). "[A] judge may dismiss . . . claims which are 'based on indisputably meritless legal 12 theories' or whose 'factual contentions are clearly baseless.'" Jackson v. Arizona, 885 F.2d 639, 13 640 (9th Cir. 1989) (quoting Neitzke, 490 U.S. at 327), superseded by statute on other grounds as 14 stated in Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1130 (9th Cir. 2000). The critical inquiry is whether a 15 constitutional claim, however inartfully pleaded, has an arguable legal and factual basis.
16 Franklin, 745 F.2d at 1227-28 (citations omitted).

17 "Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a)(2) requires only 'a short and plain statement of the 18 claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief,' in order to 'give the defendant fair notice of 19 what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon which it rests.'" Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 20 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) (alteration in original) (quoting Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41, 47 (1957)).
21 "Failure to state a claim under § 1915A incorporates the familiar standard applied in the context 22 of failure to state a claim under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6)." Wilhelm v. Rotman, 23 680 F.3d 1113, 1121 (9th Cir. 2012) (citations omitted). In order to survive dismissal for failure 24 to state a claim, a complaint must contain more than "a formulaic recitation of the elements of a 25 cause of action;" it must contain factual allegations sufficient "to raise a right to relief above the 26 speculative level." Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555 (citations omitted). "[T]he pleading must contain 27 something more . . . than . . . a statement of facts that merely creates a suspicion [of] a legally 28 cognizable right of action." Id. (alteration in original) (quoting 5 Charles Alan Wright & Arthur

1 R. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1216 (3d ed. 2004)).

2 “[A] complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to ‘state a claim to 3 relief that is plausible on its face.’” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (quoting 4 Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570). “A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual 5 content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the 6 misconduct alleged.” Id. (citing Twombly, 550 U.S. at 556). In reviewing a complaint under this 7 standard, the court must accept as true the allegations of the complaint in question, Hosp. Bldg.
8 Co. v. Trs. of the Rex Hosp., 425 U.S. 738, 740 (1976) (citation omitted), as well as construe the 9 pleading in the light most favorable to the plaintiff and resolve all doubts in the plaintiff’s favor, 10 Jenkins v. McKeithen, 395 U.S. 411, 421 (1969) (citations omitted).

11 III. Complaint

12 Plaintiff is a federal pretrial detainee being held in the Sacramento County Jail, who 13 challenges the conditions of his confinement at the jail. The undersigned takes judicial notice of 14 the fact that plaintiff is charged in Case No. 2:19-cr-00107 KJM with participation in a 15 racketeering conspiracy that involved murder and drug distribution.¹ It is a potentially capital 16 prosecution. The government has alleged that plaintiff is an Aryan Brotherhood member who, 17 while a state prison inmate, murdered another prisoner as part of the conspiracy. Plaintiff was 18 transferred from the custody of the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation to the 19 custody of the U.S. Marshal for purposes of the present federal prosecution. The USMS contracts 20 with Sacramento County for the housing of federal pretrial detainees at the county jail.

21 The complaint presents ten claims, which are detailed below. Plaintiff challenges several 22 conditions of his confinement—placement in an “extreme isolation” unit without a hearing, denial 23 of outdoor recreation, frequent cell moves, and unsanitary conditions—and alleges that he has 24 been denied adequate access to his lawyers. Plaintiff names eight defendants: Sacramento 25 County Sheriff Scott Jones; Undersheriff Erik Maness; Jail Commander Brandon Luke; 26 Intelligence Lt. Shaun Hampton; Intelligence Sgt. Saika; Intelligence Sgt. Villanueva; Donald

27 ¹ See Fed. R. Evid. 201(b). It is well established that a court may take judicial notice of its own 28 records. See United States v. Author Servs., Inc., 804 F.2d 1520, 1523 (9th Cir. 1986).

1 Washington, Director of the U.S. Marshal Service; and Acting U.S. Marshal Laysha Boyden.
2 The complaint also lists Does 1-15 as defendants, ECF No. 1 at 1, 6, but contains no factual 3 allegations referencing any Does.

4 IV. Failure to State a Claim

5 A. Overarching Defects

6 1. Federal Officers Cannot be Liable Under 42 U.S.C. § 1983

7 42 U.S.C. § 1983 provides a cause of action for constitutional violations committed by 8 persons acting under color of state law; section 1983 claims do not lie against persons who are not 9 acting on behalf of the state. West v. Atkins, 487 U.S. 42, 58 (1988). For this reason, § 1983 10 does not provide a cause of action for constitutional violations committed by federal officials.
11 Daly-Murphy v. Winston, 837 F.2d 348, 355 (9th Cir. 1988). Accordingly, all claims fail against 12 defendants Washington and Boyden. Amendment of any § 1983 claim against officials of the 13 USMS would be futile.²

14 2. Improper Doe Defendants

15 Inclusion of “Doe” defendants is generally disfavored in the Ninth Circuit. Gillespie v.
16 Civiletti, 629 F.2d 637, 642 (9th Cir. 1980). However, where a claim for relief has been 17 adequately pleaded against a Doe defendant, it may proceed subject to future amendment to 18 substitute the true name for a fictitiously named defendant. See Merritt v. County of Los 19 Angeles, 875 F.2d 765 (9th Cir. 1989). Here, the claims against the Doe defendants are 20 inadequate to proceed because the complaint does not identify specific acts by any Doe that 21 allegedly violated the plaintiff’s rights. Accordingly, the complaint fails to meet the notice 22 requirements of Rule 8(a), Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, as to the Doe defendants. See 23 ² The U.S. Supreme Court recognized a limited cause of action against federal officials for civil 24 rights violations in Bivens v. Six Unknown Fed. Narcotics Agents, 403 U.S. 388 (1971). Bivens 25 claims are generally limited to alleged violations of the Fourth Amendment and inadequate 26 medical care in violation of the Eighth Amendment; the Supreme Court has also recognized the 27 availability of Bivens to seek redress for gender discrimination in violation of the Fifth 28 Amendment. Ziglar v. Abbasi, 137 S. Ct. 1843, 1854 (2017). Further extensions of Bivens are disfavored. Id. at 1857. None of plaintiff’s allegations suggest a cognizable Bivens claim. Nor has plaintiff alleged any facts showing that the U.S. Marshal or any member of the USMS caused any of the conditions of which plaintiff complains.

1 Hutchinson v. United States, 677 F.2d 1322, 1328 n.5 (9th Cir.1982).

2 3. Lack of Factual Allegations as to Individual Defendants

3 To establish the liability of any defendant, plaintiff must plead facts demonstrating how 4 the specific acts or omissions of that person caused the alleged constitutional violation(s). See 5 Johnson v. Duffy, 588 F.2d 740, 743 (9th Cir. 1978); Taylor v. List, 880 F.2d 1040, 1045 (9th 6 Cir. 1989). None of the claims in the complaint specify who was responsible for the challenged 7 conditions or deprivations of rights. Plaintiff will be given the opportunity to amend the 8 complaint in order to clarify which defendant caused which alleged violation(s), and how.

9 4. Lack of Factual Allegations as to Unconstitutional Policies

10 To the extent that plaintiff's theory of liability as to any claim rests on the existence of a 11 county policy or custom, see Monell v. Department of Social Services, 436 U.S. 658, 694 (1978), 12 he must allege what the policy is and how it caused the violation of his rights. See City of Canton 13 v. Harris, 489 U.S. 378, 385 (1989) (requiring "a direct causal link between a municipal policy or 14 custom and the alleged constitutional deprivation."). Because plaintiff may be able to specify the 15 policy or policies that allegedly caused the violations of his rights, he will be granted leave to 16 amend.

17 5. Rights of Pretrial Detainees Generally, and Applicable Pleading Standards

18 The rights of pretrial detainees are grounded in the Due Process Clause. Bell v. Wolfish, 19 441 U.S. 520, 545 (1979); Pierce v. County of Orange, 526 F.3d 1190, 1205 (9th Cir. 2008).
20 Detainees have a substantive due process right against restrictions that amount to punishment.
21 Valdez v. Rosenbaum, 302 F.3d 1039, 1045 (9th Cir. 2002) (citing United States v. Salerno, 481 22 U.S. 739, 746 (1987)). "For a particular governmental action to constitute punishment, (1) that 23 action must cause the detainee to suffer some harm or 'disability,' and (2) the purpose of the 24 governmental action must be to punish the detainee." Demery v. Arpaio, 378 F.3d 1020, 1029 25 (9th Cir. 2004) (citing Bell, 441 U.S. at 538). "Unless there is evidence of intent to punish, then 26 those conditions or restrictions that are reasonably related to legitimate penological objectives do 27 not violate a pretrial detainee's right to be free from punishment." Hatter v. Dyer, 154 F. Supp.
28 3d 940, 945 (C.D. Cal. 2015) (citing Block v. Rutherford, 468 U.S. 576, 584 (1984)).

1 In the first step of this inquiry, “the harm or disability . . . must either significantly exceed,
2 or be independent of, the inherent discomforts of confinement.” Id. at 1030 (citing Bell, 441 U.S.
3 at 537). To determine punitive intent, courts “first examine whether the restriction is based upon 4 an express intent to inflict punishment.” Valdez, 302 F.3d at 1045 (citing Salerno, 481 U.S. at 5 746). Courts “next consider whether punitive intent can be inferred from the nature of the 6 restriction. This determination . . . will generally turn upon ‘whether an alternative purpose to 7 which [the restriction] may rationally be connected is assignable for it, and whether [the 8 restriction] appears excessive in relation to the alternative purpose assigned [to it].’” Id. (citing 9 Bell, 441 U.S. at 539) (brackets in original).

10 As to any condition of confinement alleged to be unconstitutional, plaintiff must plead 11 facts that demonstrate both (1) harm to plaintiff and (2) an intent to punish plaintiff, rather than a 12 legitimate penological rationale, motivating the challenged action or restriction. He has not done 13 so in the complaint before the court. Conclusory allegations regarding intent are insufficient. See 14 Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678. At a minimum plaintiff must state facts which, accepted as true, support 15 an inference of punitive effect and intent as to any particular condition he challenges.

16 B. Claim One: Placement in Isolation Unit

17 Claim One alleges that plaintiff has “arbitrarily” been housed since his transfer to the jail 18 in an extreme isolation unit where he remains in his cell for 22 hours a day. Plaintiff did not 19 receive notice or an opportunity to be heard in relation to his placement in total isolation. ECF 20 No. 1 at 2, 8. The introduction to the complaint, id. at 2, indicates that plaintiff is housed in the 21 jail’s Total Separation Unit.³ Conditions in this unit are “much worse than is normal for 22 prisoners.” Id. at 8.

23 A pretrial detainee may not be subjected to disciplinary segregation as punishment for 24 violation of jail rules and regulations without notice and a hearing. See Mitchell v. Dupnik, 75

25 ³ The Total Separation Unit “is reserved for inmates that present a high security risk, such as 26 inmates accused of notorious crimes, inmates who have demonstrated an unwillingness to follow 27 facility rules, inmates that have been violent with others, and inmates that may be targets of 28 violence by other inmates. . . . Inmates in the Total Separation Unit are housed in a cell alone and separated from all other inmates.” Harlan v. County of Sacramento, Case No. 2:16-cv-02400-JAM, ECF No. 21 at 2, 2018 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 53773 *1-2 (E.D. Cal. March 29, 2018).

1 F.3d 517, 523-26 (9th Cir. 1996). Plaintiff's restricted housing status, however, is not alleged to 2 be a punitive response to violation of jail rules. He affirmatively alleges to the contrary. ECF 3 No. 1 at 7.

4 To the extent that plaintiff was assigned to the Total Separation Unit on the basis of his 5 classification status, his claim falters. The Ninth Circuit has held that pretrial detainees have "no 6 constitutional right to a particular classification status." Hernandez v. Johnston, 833 F.2d 1316, 7 1318 (9th Cir. 1987). Jails may take measures to maintain institutional security and preserve 8 internal order, even when such measures infringe on specific constitutional guarantees; such 9 measures "must be evaluated in the light of the central objective of prison administration, 10 safeguarding institutional security." Bell, 441 U.S. at 546-547; see also Salerno, 481 U.S. at 747 11 (there is no constitutional infringement if restrictions are "but an incident of some other legitimate 12 government purpose.").

13 To state a claim for violation of his Fourteenth Amendment rights by placement in the 14 Total Separation Unit, plaintiff must show that his housing classification (1) has caused him to 15 suffer harm or disability, and (2) the purpose of the classification was to punish him. See Demery 16 v. Arpaio, 378 F.3d 1020, 1029 (9th Cir. 2004) (citing Bell, 441 U.S. at 538). Plaintiff will be 17 given the opportunity to amend.

18 C. Claim Two: Denial of Confidential Legal Visits

19 The complaint alleges in conclusory terms that defendants have violated and continue to 20 violate plaintiff's Sixth Amendment right to meet and confer with counsel in a confidential 21 setting. ECF No. 1 at 2, 8. Plaintiff alleges that there is one visiting booth for detainees in the 22 Total Separation Unit, and that all conversations inside and outside the booth can be clearly 23 overheard. Id. at 7.

24 Sixth Amendment rights are trial rights. See Martinez v. Court of Appeal, 528 U.S. 152, 25 160-61 (2000). The Ninth Circuit has never recognized a cognizable claim for damages under § 26 1983 for restrictions on the attorney-client relationship in alleged violation of the Sixth

27 ///

28 ///

1 Amendment.⁴ The constitutional right of access to courts, however, see Bounds v. Smith, 430 2 U.S. 817, 821 (1977), includes legal visitation and confidential communications with counsel.
3 Ching v. Lewis, 895 F.2d 608, 610 (9th Cir. 1990); Hydrick v. Hunter, 500 F.3d 978, 999 (9th 4 Cir. 2007) (overruled on other grounds). This right is not absolute; like other rights of pretrial 5 detainees, visits may be denied or limited for legitimate reasons. See Block, 468 U.S. at 585-89; 6 Salerno, 481 U.S. at 747. To state a denial of access claim, the plaintiff must state facts showing 7 that he suffered an actual injury—that the defendants’ actions “hindered his efforts to pursue a 8 legal claim.” Lewis v. Casey, 518 U.S. 343, 351 (1996). Because there are no such factual 9 allegations here, plaintiff has failed to state a claim for relief.

10 Moreover, the complaint does not adequately describe the conditions under which legal 11 visits have taken place. Plaintiff’s allegations suggest that he is provided a private visiting both; 12 facts showing an actual breach of confidentiality are missing. The court therefore cannot 13 determine whether plaintiff’s rights have been or are being violated. Plaintiff will be granted 14 leave to amend.

15 D. Claim Three: Recording of Attorney-Client Conversations

16 The complaint summarily alleges that plaintiff’s Sixth Amendment and privacy rights 17 have been violated by the recording of four confidential legal visits. ECF No. 1 at 2, 9. No 18 details are provided.

19 As with Claim Two, plaintiff has not presented facts demonstrating the violation of his 20 rights. Plaintiff will be permitted to amend.

21 E. Claim Four: Denial of Confidential Legal Phone Calls

22 Plaintiff alleges that he must use a common area telephone in a non-confidential setting 23 for his legal calls, in violation of his Sixth Amendment rights. ECF No. 1 at 7, 9. As noted 24 above, while jails may not entirely preclude confidential attorney-client communication, some 25 ⁴ In an unpublished case, the Court of Appeals has relied on Martinez to reject alleged Sixth 26 Amendment violations as the basis for a cognizable claim under § 1983. Devon v. Roe, 81 Fed.

27 Appx. 147, 2003 U.S. App. LEXIS 23201 (9th Cir. 2003). The absence of authority for the right 28 asserted by plaintiff would support dismissal at the screening stage on grounds of qualified immunity. See Chavez v. Robinson, 817 F.3d 1162, 1169 (9th Cir. 2016) (district court may dismiss § 1983 complaint sua sponte and pre-service on grounds of qualified immunity).

1 infringements can be justified on security grounds. The complaint does not contain enough facts 2 to determine whether plaintiff's telephone access satisfies constitutional standards. Plaintiff may 3 amend.

4 F. Claim Five: Frequent Cell Moves and Potential Related COVID-19 Exposure

5 The complaint alleges that since June 2020, plaintiff has been moved to a different cell no 6 less than three times per month, and that these moves have increased his risk of exposure to 7 COVID-19. ECF No. 1 at 2, 9. Plaintiff contends that the cell moves reflect deliberate 8 indifference to his safety. Id. at 9.

9 To state a claim for deliberate indifference under the Fourteenth Amendment, plaintiff 10 must allege facts showing that (1) defendant(s) made an intentional decision with respect to the 11 conditions of plaintiff's confinement; (2) those conditions exposed plaintiff to a "substantial risk 12 of serious harm"; (3) defendant(s) did not take reasonable available measures to abate that risk, 13 even though a reasonable officer in the circumstances would have appreciated the high degree of 14 risk involved; and (4) by not taking those measures, defendant(s) caused plaintiff's injuries.
15 Castro v. County of Los Angeles, 833 F.3d 1060, 1071 (9th Cir. 2016), cert. denied, 137 S. Ct.
16 831 (2017). The allegations of the complaint do not satisfy this standard. Among other things, 17 the complaint lacks allegations establishing a substantial risk of serious harm or injury to plaintiff 18 from the cell moves. Speculative future harm is insufficient. Plaintiff will be allowed to amend.

19 G. Claim Six: Denial of Outside Exercise

20 The complaint alleges in conclusory fashion that plaintiff's Eighth Amendment rights 21 have been violated by the failure to provide outdoor recreation. ECF No. 1 at 9. Plaintiff 22 explains that he has not been allowed outside since October of 2020. Id. at 8. Elsewhere he 23 alleges that he is confined to his cell for 22 hours a day; he does not say whether he is provided 24 the opportunity to exercise during the two hours each day that he is out of his cell.

25 In the prison context, exercise is one of the basic human necessities protected by the 26 Eighth Amendment. See LeMaire v. Maass, 12 F.3d 1444, 1457 (9th Cir. 1993). Some form of 27 regular exercise, including outdoor exercise, "is extremely important to the psychological and 28 physical well-being" of inmates. See Spain v. Procunier, 600 F.2d 189, 199 (9th Cir. 1979). But

1 restrictions on exercise for security reasons do not violate the Constitution. See, e.g., LeMaire, 12
2 F.3d at 1458 (upholding long-term denial of outdoor exercise to prisoner posing serious security 3 risk who can exercise in his cell).⁵ Plaintiff has not pled facts showing that limitations on his 4 exercise opportunities exceed those limitations that are permissible for security or other legitimate 5 purposes. Nor has he alleged facts demonstrating punitive intent. See Demery, 378 F.3d at 1029.
6 Plaintiff will be granted leave to amend.

7 H. Claim Seven: Unsanitary Conditions

8 Plaintiff alleges that his right to be free from unsanitary conditions has been and is being 9 violated. ECF No. 1 at 10. No unsanitary conditions are described. Plaintiff alleges only that he 10 is deprived of “adequate hygenic supplies with which to sanitize his immediate environment.”
11 ECF No. 1 at 10.

12 Unsanitary conditions can, when severe enough, violate the Eighth Amendment rights of 13 convicted prisoners by rising to level of cruel and unusual punishment, or violate the Fourteenth 14 Amendment rights of pretrial detainees by rising to the level of punishment. See Anderson v.
15 County of Kern, 45 F.3d 1310, 1314, as amended, 75 F.3d 448 (9th Cir. 1995); Martino v. Carey, 16 563 F. Supp. 984, 999-1000 (D. Or. 1983). Because the complaint before the court does not 17 describe the allegedly unsanitary conditions to which plaintiff is exposed, it is impossible to 18 determine whether such conditions plausibly rise to the level of a constitutional violation.
19 Plaintiff will be granted leave to amend.

20 I. Claim Eight: Unsafe Conditions

21 The complaint alleges that plaintiff’s right to safety is violated by housing in a cell that is 22 padlocked from the outside and can only be opened manually with a key. ECF No. 1 at 7, 10.
23 Plaintiff alleges in conclusory terms that this creates extreme fire, health and safety hazards. Id.
24 at 10.

26 ⁵ Although LaMaire is an Eighth Amendments case regarding the rights of convicted prisoners to 27 be free of punishment that is “cruel and unusual,” and plaintiff here is a pretrial detainee who may 28 not be punished, the same principle applies. To state a claim, plaintiff must plead facts showing that the denial of outdoor exercise rises to the level of punishment and is not a permissible “regulatory restraint” justified by security considerations. See Bell, 441 U.S. at 537.

1 To state a claim that his constitutional rights are violated by an unsafe condition, plaintiff 2 must plead facts establishing that (1) defendant(s) made an intentional decision with respect to the 3 conditions of plaintiff's confinement; (2) those conditions exposed plaintiff to a "substantial risk
4 of serious harm"; (3) defendant(s) did not take reasonable available measures to abate that risk, 5 even though a reasonable officer in the circumstances would have appreciated the high degree of 6 risk involved; and (4) by not taking those measures, defendant(s) caused plaintiff's injuries.
7 Castro, 833 F.3d at 1071. The complaint does not state such facts. In particular, plaintiff's 8 conclusory allegation regarding the risk of harm is insufficient. Plaintiff may amend.

9 J. Claim Nine: Harassment

10 Plaintiff alleges that the "random and arbitrary" cell moves he has experienced lack 11 penological justification and "can only be viewed as a tailored scheme by defendants to harass 12 plaintiff." ECF No. 1 at 10. The moves happen in relation to body scans that plaintiff undergoes.
13 Id. at 8. After being removed from his cell and escorted to the "intake floor" for a scan, plaintiff 14 is put into a different cell that has not been sanitized. Id.

15 Harassment alone does not violate an inmate's constitutional rights. See, e.g., Oltarzewski 16 v. Ruggiero, 830 F.2d 136, 139 (9th Cir. 1987); Austin v. Terhune, 367 F.3d 1167, 1171-72 (9th 17 Cir. 2004). The complaint does not allege that the moves are motivated by any constitutionally 18 prohibited consideration. See Freeman v. Arpaio, 125 F.3d 732, 738 n.6 (9th Cir. 1997) 19 (harassment directed at an inmate's religion, though insufficient to state a constitutional violation 20 itself, may be considered as evidence of unconstitutional discrimination).

21 K. Claim Ten: Totality of Conditions

22 The complaint alleges that the combined effects of the conditions described in the 23 complaint violate plaintiff's constitutional rights. ECF No. 1 at 11.

24 This claim provides no cognizable basis for relief. There is no "cumulative error" liability 25 under Section §1983. Should plaintiff include this claim in an amended complaint, it will be 26 disregarded as surplusage.

27 L. The Complaint Will Not Be Served

28 For the reasons explained above, the facts alleged in the complaint fail to state any claim

1 for which relief may be granted against any defendant. Accordingly, the complaint is subject to 2 summary dismissal under 28 U.S.C. § 1915A. Because the court cannot conclude that 3 amendment would be futile, plaintiff will be given the opportunity to amend.

4 V. Leave to Amend

5 If plaintiff chooses to file a first amended complaint, he must demonstrate how the 6 conditions about which he complains resulted in a deprivation of his constitutional rights. Rizzo 7 v. Goode, 423 U.S. 362, 370-71 (1976). Also, the complaint must allege in specific terms how 8 each named defendant is involved. Arnold v. Int'l Bus. Machs. Corp., 637 F.2d 1350, 1355 (9th 9 Cir. 1981). There can be no liability under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 unless there is some affirmative link 10 or connection between a defendant's actions and the claimed deprivation. Id.; Johnson v. Duffy, 11 588 F.2d 740, 743 (9th Cir. 1978). "Vague and conclusory allegations of official participation in 12 civil rights violations are not sufficient." Ivey v. Bd. of Regents, 673 F.2d 266, 268 (9th Cir.
13 1982) (citations omitted).

14 Plaintiff is also informed that the court cannot refer to a prior pleading in order to make 15 his first amended complaint complete. Local Rule 220 requires that an amended complaint be 16 complete in itself without reference to any prior pleading. This is because, as a general rule, an 17 amended complaint supersedes the original complaint. Loux v. Rhay, 375 F.2d 55, 57 (9th Cir.
18 1967) (citations omitted), overruled in part by Lacey v. Maricopa County, 693 F.3d 896, 928 (9th 19 Cir. 2012) (claims dismissed with prejudice and without leave to amend do not have to be re-pled 20 in subsequent amended complaint to preserve appeal). Once plaintiff files a first amended 21 complaint, the original complaint no longer serves any function in the case. Therefore, in an 22 amended complaint, as in an original complaint, each claim and the involvement of each 23 defendant must be sufficiently alleged.

24 VI. Plain Language Summary of this Order for a Pro Se Litigant

25 Your request to proceed in forma pauperis is granted and you are not required to pay the 26 entire filing fee immediately.

27 The complaint will not be served because the facts you have alleged are not enough to 28 state a claim for relief. The problems with each specific claim are explained above. In general,

1 the Eighth Amendment does not apply because you are a pretrial detainee. To challenge any 2 condition of your confinement, you must state facts showing (1) that the condition is harming you 3 and (2) that you are being subjected to it in order to punish you rather than for reasons of jail 4 security. Also, for each claim you must specify which defendant(s) are responsible and what they 5 did or didn't do that caused the violation of your rights. If you are challenging a jail policy, you 6 need to say what the policy is and how it has been applied to you.

7 You may file an amended complaint. If you choose to amend your complaint, the first 8 amended complaint must include all of the claims you want to make because the court will not 9 look at the claims or information in the original complaint. Any claims not in the first amended 10 complaint will not be considered.

11 CONCLUSION

12 In accordance with the above, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that:

13 1. Plaintiff's request for leave to proceed in forma pauperis (ECF No. 2) is granted.

14 2. Plaintiff is obligated to pay the statutory filing fee of $350.00 for this action. Plaintiff 15 is assessed an initial partial filing fee in accordance with the provisions of 28 U.S.C.
16 § 1915(b)(1). All fees shall be collected and paid in accordance with this court's order to the 17 Sheriff of Sacramento County filed concurrently herewith.

18 3. Plaintiff's complaint has been screened pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915A and found not 19 to state a claim for relief.

20 4. Within thirty days from the date of service of this order, plaintiff may file an amended 21 complaint that complies with the requirements of the Civil Rights Act, the Federal Rules of Civil 22 Procedure, and the Local Rules of Practice. The amended complaint must bear the docket 23 number assigned this case and must be labeled "First Amended Complaint." Plaintiff must file an 24 original and two copies of the amended complaint. Failure to file an amended complaint in 25 accordance with this order will result in dismissal of this action.
